"Candles In Time"

The light of a dimly flickering
Candle guides me back to yesterday
A candle given to me from birth
Smiles and tears from time
That has passed
Burn on in my mind
As time goes on a pool of Memories surround me
I know that there will be more
Just waiting for me to find them
A waxy lagoon begins to rise
Over the wick of that dimly
Flickering candle
When the flame goes out
I must leave this place
I will move on to further
Enrich myself
And my dreams-
Oh my dreams...
Though the waxy pool
Continually rises and slowly
Drowns the wick to burning
Memories
It does not kill them
They no longer burn
In My mind
But are cherished in my heart
And from them I gain
The strength to set out
And burn candles
Of my Own

WHO WE ARE

Who are we? That is one of the hardest questions to answer for our individual selves, let alone an entire school. Well, we have to start somewhere, so here we go . . .

We are the students of South Windsor High. As you unfold the pages of this yearbook, you will see us at work and at play. We are the people who wander the halls and attend classes from 7 am until 1:52 in the afternoon. We are the kids who race out of G-period class to go to work at McDonald's, Showcase, 7-11, and Dairy Queen (to name a few); or jump in the nearest car and head to Wickham Park or a friends house; or jump on the bus to rush home and go to sleep. We are also the athletes who charge the field for practice, or in X-country's case, hit the road. We are the actors and musicians who gather in the auditorium to rehearse, rehearse, and re-rehearse our scences. We are also the dedicated writers of the Southwinds, the literary magazine and the yearbook. We are also members of the math team, NHS and all the other clubs.

What do we look like? Well, we come in all different shapes, sizes, colors and ages. We have red hair, black hair, brown hair, and blonde hair. We wear glasses and contacts and watches and rings and lot's of other things. We are plain and we are beautiful.

We are the people who haunt our teachers dreams at night and send them to early retirements. We are hell-raisers and do-gooders. We are people striving to live the best way we can until we are old enough to leave school and strike out on our own. We are people from all walks of life thrown together under one roof for 180 days a year

We are the people who make up this school. We are the students of South Windsor High.

Vanessa Gruver, barely awake waits for the school bus before school.

Cindy Cohen strikes a lovely tune while practicing for a concert.

Senior Todd Pavone catches a few Z's hall after a long weekend.

A hurried student rushes so as not to be late to class.

"Just a little snack before I eat lunch", says Jean Pitzi.

"Table for two?", proclaims Elizabeth Williams.

Billy Tobin and friends try to enjoy a quick meal in our cafeteria, but are rudely interrupted by a year-book photographer.

Junior class Spectators, Michele Infante, Amy Downey and Marie Brathwaite, watch the first game of the season with unleashed enthusiasm.

In the music room before Vocal, junior Katie Plummer shares a piece of music news with friend and teacher, Mr. Anderson.

This Is...

What we do

Yeah Rah Rah...! Touch-down! SAT's! Drivers Ed.! Marching Band! State Championships! Yearbook Deadlines! Junior Prom! Graduation! Sophomore Rings! Photography! Shades! NHS! Outing Club! ...ect. ect.

These are just a few of the many activities going on at SWHS. From French Club to Field Hockey, Football to Frisbee or from Outing Club rafting trips to Band exchange concerts, there is a wide variety of activities from which to choose. Students can get involved in whatever interests them. Some choose just to concentrate on their schoolwork and not get involved in extra activities but many students feel that activities make school worthwhile.

"Something to look forward to besides classes" says J.J. Brown.

Spirit week was one of our most interesting activities. The Pep Rally and the Bonfire got the weekend off to a roaring start. The Homecoming football game against Rockville, and then dancing the night away was a perfect ending to our Homecoming event.

No matter what anyone says about school being boring, there is always something going on. Whether it is academic or extra-curricular, anyone can (if they want to) manage to get involved at South Windsor High School.

Editor of the senior class section, Cathy Woska works diligently after school making layouts to meet an upcoming yearbook deadline.

Junior Brian Symonds, charges forward through a field of Manchester Indians one Saturday afternoon, in a game that ended in a Bobcat victory.

So Let's Not Say Goodbye

When we look back
We'll see our past
So far gone--but on my mind.
The years we struggled
The days we tried
The hours we learned
The tears we cried
Waiting for our time to come.
To feel the sun...
And not the rain

We were together my friend for long
Now that part of our lives is gone
I'll miss the fun that we have had The days of happy; even those of sad.
We carried youth inside for long
Now the time has made our song,
Signaling a time to grow
And test the world we wait to know.

While going so far in our tracks
Hoping love will bring us back
To where we were before
When youth was at our door.

I'll miss you so very much my friend
And while I start to cry
I'll not say good-bye
For good-bye means the end
And I still have ears to lend
To hear you laugh or cry
So let's not say good-bye

Our time apart is tired
But we still have youth inside
I'll be seeing you again I'm sure
So if you hear a knock on your door...

We've had something very strong
I know it will last ever long
The words to you I'm trying to send I'll love you forever my Best friend!

Student Life

Perhaps this portrait is a display of power of the girls Varsity Soccer team, or is it just a bid for attention? You decide.

And here now to boost our classes school spirit is our Bobcat himself, Donny Cyr. His job is to get a rise out of the students.

School Spirit

Once again this year the spirit of S.W.H.S. filled the hallways during the week of November 2-6. The juniors led the student body in the daily activities. Monday re-addressed last years idea of a "hat and shades day", and Tuesday was "backwards Day". Sloppy clothes came out in full force on Wednesday. What was your favorite occupation? Thursday was the day to dress up in work clothes. Priests, nuns, dancers and McDonalds employees, just to name a few, showed up at S.W.H.S. To close our week "Maroon and Gold Day" continued as part of the spirit week tradition. A pep rally ended our school day, Friday, with a bon fire taking place later in the evening.

The homecoming game was played Saturday against Rockville- S.W.H.S. crushed the rams 33-9. After the boys got off the field the senior girls won the powder puff game against the junior girls.

To end up the week, the students converged at the "come together" homecoming dance dressed in mini skirts and bell-bottoms, tie-dyes and bandanas. The theme was, of course, the 60's- peace, love and a good time for everybody involved in spirit week.

Students rise to the occasion, as the cheerleaders make their rounds in the gym at the first Pep Rally of the year before Homecoming.

A student watches with uplifting spirit as the band plays The Star Spangled Banner at the Pep Rally. A touching moment for all.

What's new under the "Golden Arches"? Many of the SWHS students tardy's are related to a breakfast stop at Mickey D's.

At SW High's favorite, Nancy Veilleux rings up the orders at Mickey D's during a lunch rush.

'Pam'ming it up at the same old grind. Pam Bogli spends her afternoon at Subway working to earn some extra "dough"?

This is...

Working

Jobs, they're great! The money, the new friends, and the independence. Well, the money is nice to have, but...is it really worth the effort? Those with good salaries usually say, "Yeah, man, it's cool", and those of us who get paid didily squat might give a different reply. The friends...well... that depends on whether you like the people you work with or if you just put up with them because you like your paycheck at the end of the week.

Then, of course, there is the first time your work schedule conflicts with your social schedule. That's when you hit the "ask-off book" A.K.A., the "excuse book". Now I don't know if you have one of those at your place of employment (the concept is fairly easy to understand - it is merely a book in which you "ask off" certain days from work). Where I work the book gets used quite a bit.

There is also a little matter of "your boss". That often evil person who makes you do what you're supposed to do, and never lets you rest - because there is always something to be done (which happens to be my boss's personal favorite saying). I'm sure you know that feeling (yeah, that's right, the one that goes along with the fake smile) when the boss comes out of hiding - oh I mean out of his office and asks if everything is done and put away. Then you start wondering if you remembered to do this or if you did that right. Eventually you get to go home and relax and hopefully forget all about your day at work.

This is...

How we learn

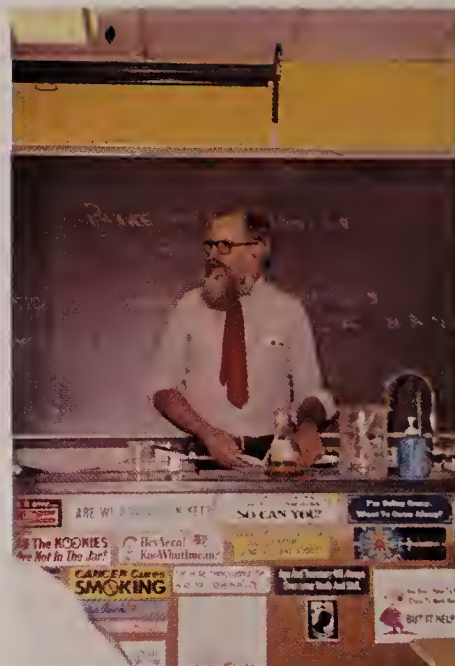

Everyday we force ourselves to get up very early in the morning to come to school and learn. We are taught just about everything we need to know in this building, from solving a mile-long math problem to writing essays, and chasing a ball around a dirty gym floor. They even offer us courses in child development (so we might understand ourselves better). Cooking, so we'll know how to put popcorn in the microwave and watch it pop; typing-the art of pressing tiny keys without looking at them; wood-how to make a shelf, and chorus, how to sing and read music. Let us not forget those foreign languages that are needed to get into a "good" college.

More importantly though, they put us in an atmosphere where we must learn to get along with others. We learn so much everyday. Learning doesn't always have to be done in a classroom under the direction of a teacher. Sometimes our friends are our teachers, or surprisingly enough we might learn something on our own.

Learning is not confined within school walls or school grounds. Our parents and brothers or sisters are great teachers, if we took the time to listen we could learn a lot. What about our employers and the customers we deal with every day? Have you ever gone

"people watching"? You know, when you go to the beach and look at all the people passing by, or you're just sitting in your car at a red light. You see things you liked or didn't like about them. It was then that you began learning about yourself. You were growing up and that's what learning is all about. Remember books and homework are important, but so are people. All are the tools necessary for learning.

Who says you get time off from class? Students work diligently on current events during their alleged "free time".

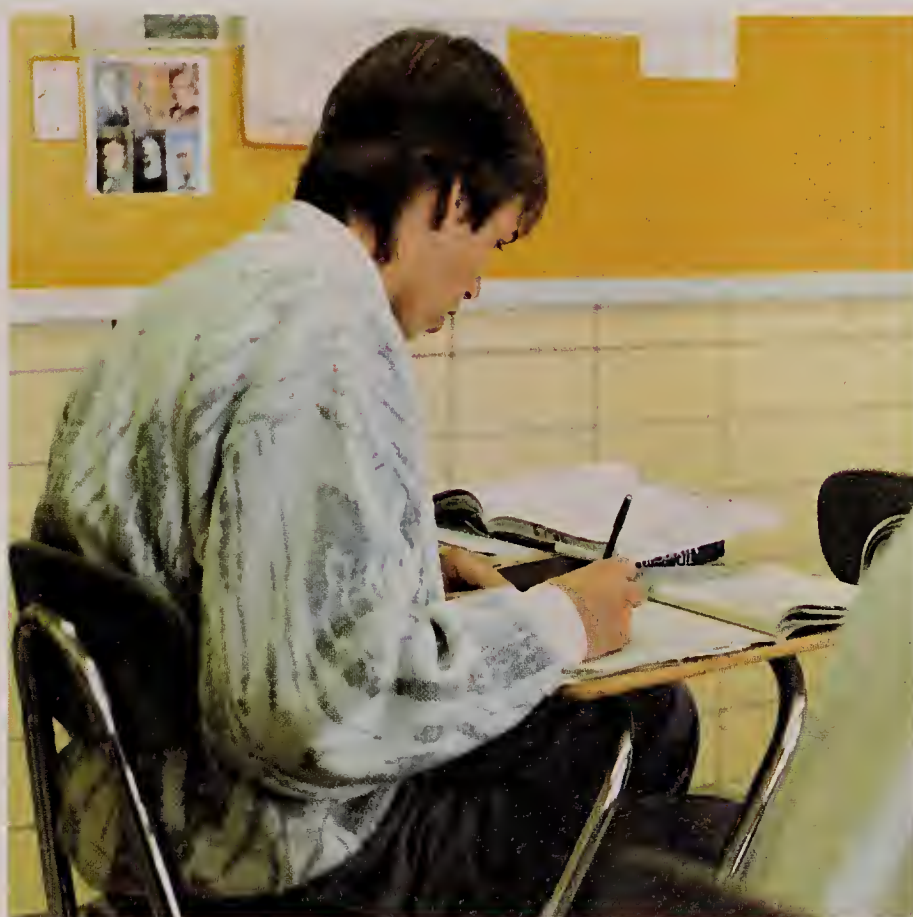

One lone door awaits open at the end of the empty hallway. This is the picture many students have seen. Yes, you are late to class.

Brian Symonds gets charged till his hair stands on end. Experiments like this are run to test the flow of electrons.

Keeping a balance...John Davis works on accounting homework while frantically trying to make ends meet on his Work Sheet.

This is...

Five more minutes. The clock seems to be standing still, working against me. Finally. Jumping up, I race into the hallway to share the important gossip I just heard.

Does this scene seem familiar to you? To many students of South Windsor High School it does. Lisa Natitus, a senior, stated, "In between classes is a great time to catch up on gossip and see people you otherwise wouldn't be able to."

Don't believe that talking is limited to the hallways though. No way. Time in the classrooms, to the dismay of the teachers, is when much communication among students takes place. "I get yelled at a lot for talking," Sue Egan, a junior, said.

Socializing

Tricia does her socializing at the refreshment stand, at a Saturday afternoon football game, with a friend, a coke and a smile.

Sam, Simone and Liz express their enthusiasm, while getting together with friends in the fire light of the bon fire Friday.

Two underclassmen girls grab the chance to sit and talk in a deserted hall in the Wapping Annex after school.

Matt Sickles, a freshman, does his socializing long distance by phone sometime during the course of the day.

Exchange Students

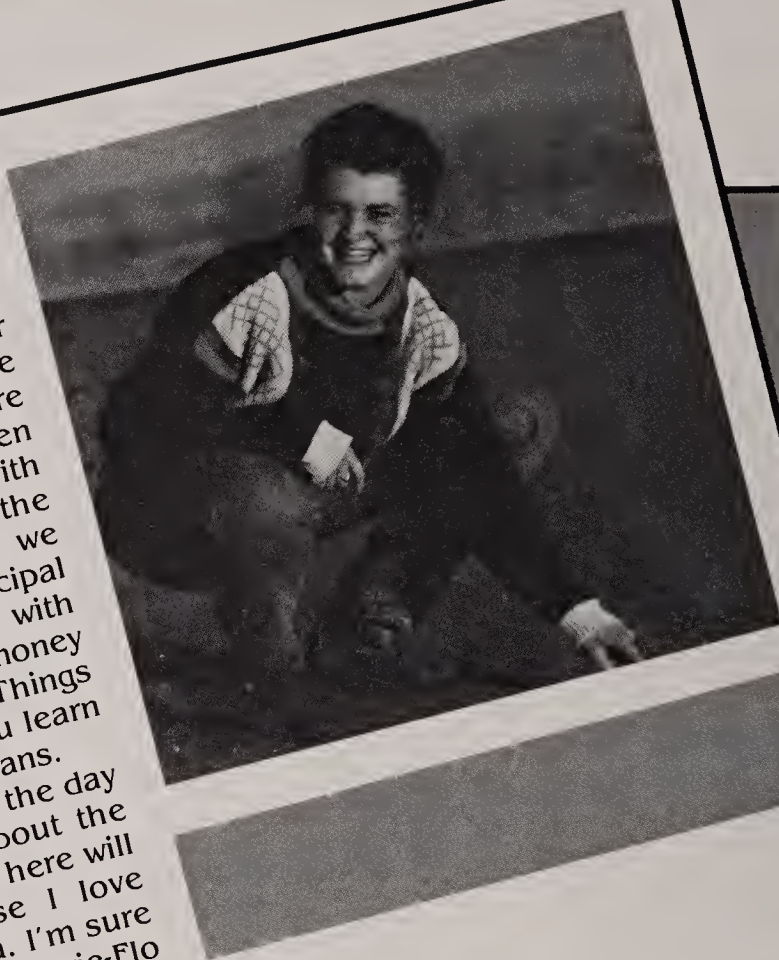

Marie-Flo Riner

Deciding to become an Exchange Student is a big decision and one should be sure of what they want. My first reason for becoming an Exchange Student is that I love traveling and I think that learning about other cultures and new ideas is really very important. In my life I need to communicate. English is the first language and everybody has to understand each other.

My second reason is that I was a little tired of French people. I've lived eighteen years with the same friends, same neighbors, and the same things every day. I dreamt about something else, something better. My dream was to come to the U.S. I'm here for only one year. In 365 days I could not fully understand American life but it's an experience.

Americans are very different from French people and maybe European people too. Most people here own a car at sixteen years old, have a job after school, and their lives are like that of adults. In France we're more like teenagers. When class is over we go out with friends and talk about life, the future, and some things we like. Jobs are not the principal problem. It's why we stay with our parents. If we need money we ask our parents. Things here are very good. You learn young what money means.

In France we live for the day and we don't care about the next day; so my year here will be very fun because I love change and America. I'm sure it's a great country. Marie-Flo Riner

A Boy from Japan

Exchange Students

Kazuhiko Uemutsu

Hi, I am an exchange student from Japan. It was September 1st that I met my host family and visited SWHS for the first time. Everything was new and I was very excited and nervous.

There are lots of differences from school in Japan, for example... we can choose lots of subjects here. On the other hand, it took about half a year to become accustomed to moving to classrooms with heavy books in a few minutes. I'm very glad that I could come to SWHS to study and participate in sports, because I was able to meet lots of nice and kind friends and teachers. They helped me with study and everyone said "hi" and talked to me. Some of my friends took me to some places on weekends and told me about their hobbies or families.

Also, Homecoming, the pep rally, field trips and etc... have made for wonderful memories!

I really appreciate that I could share great times with all the students and teachers. Thank you for everything. I have had a good time and lots of fun in the U.S.A.

Welcome to Japan. I'll be very happy to see you again! Good luck to all the students starting at SWHS. Sayonara!

This is our dedication to...

Miss Moran

A key phrase that describes Miss Sharon Moran's life at S.W.H.S. is "active involvement". For the past twenty-one years she has taught in South Windsor and has been a vital part of students' lives in the classroom and beyond. It is her belief that teaching occurs in all aspects of student activities that makes her list of contributions endless and invaluable.

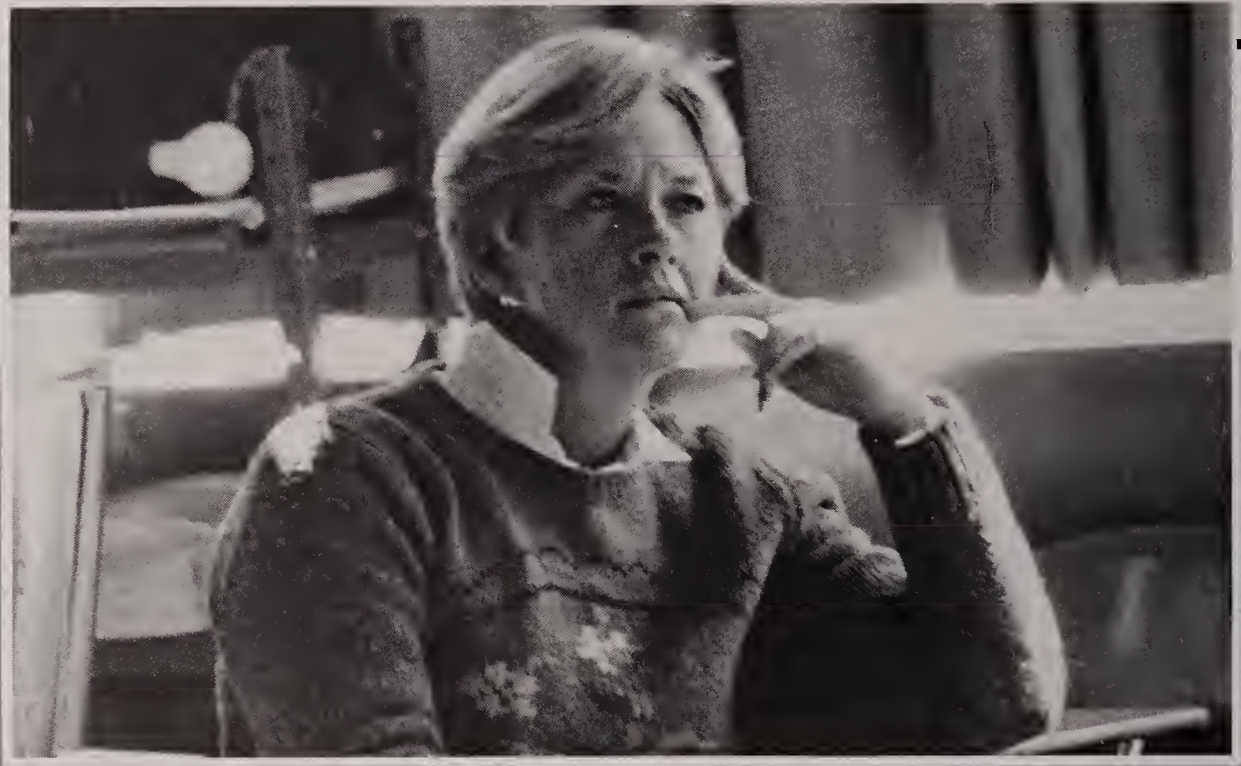

Students look forward to Miss Moran's social studies classes where they experience academic challenge in a warm and receptive environment. She encourages her students to examine their society and its history through a lively exchange of ideas and creative projects. "Active involvement" is a major philosophy at work in Miss Moran's classroom when she and her students dress up as world leaders, past or present, for a day in which history emerges from the textbook. This year Miss Moran became Esmerelda Marcos complete with the black wig and flamboyant costume.

As one of the head senior advisors, Miss Moran makes the culmination of the high school years rewarding and memorable. Every activity from the first day of senior homeroom to the walk onto stage at graduation carries with it Miss Moran's touch. She is dedicated to making each senior's last year his or her best. Through her persistent efforts, the bonfire was re-instituted this year, which is just one example of how she is an involved advocate for students.

The students at S.W.H.S. know Miss Moran as a teacher and advisor who regards them as individuals with great potential. When referring to education she said, "...it is my sincere hope that I have played a significant role...". Miss Moran has indeed "played a significant role" in the lives of students at South Windsor through her generous gifts of time, energy and concern.

Miss Moran drifts into a void of thought one day in one of her classes. Miss Moran, that's only supposed to happen to students!

Smile pretty for the camera! This is the award winning smile, that as students, many of us have come to know.

Notice the convenient location of Miss Moran. Perhaps one of the next presidential pictures on the wall will be her own.

Here we see Mr. Cloutman, Miss Moran, and Mrs. Bickford enjoying the fall pep rally. Now there's school spirit.

"Please rise for the entrance of Judge Moran." Occupation day brought forth the true Judge Wapner in Miss Moran.

A slice of life...

Whether with pepperoni, peppers or even anchovies, SWHS seniors love pizza. "Hot out of the oven, dripping with cheese and pepperoni, pizza is my favorite food," commented senior Cathy Woska.

Besides pizza, spaghetti, lasagna and lobster topped the charts. Originality though, was certainly expressed, with one lone senior's choice of circus peanuts.

The trip to school for most seniors, begins with getting into their cars. How could this part of the day be made more exciting? When asked what type of car could change the way seniors felt about driving to school, a Lamborghini was the most popular choice.

Seeing as a Lamborghini can cost the same as a house, the seniors of SWHS will just have to save their pennies and make the most of the cars which they can drive for now.

Listen to that...

Many SWHS seniors while driving to and from school, doing homework or just hanging around, listen to the radio. When asked why the radio is such an important part of being a teenager, one senior, Randy Leblanc commented, "The radio helps you to forget all your worries and problems for awhile; it helps you to let go." Obviously, the next question for the Centurion staff to ask was: what was the seniors' favorite radio station? The result: 96 WTIC FM. This station plays mostly pop, top 40 music, and occasionally rock.

This is English

This is English...

English is the only subject, other than gym, that is required throughout your four years of high school. We are taught how to spell, punctuate correctly, and how to read lengthy novels; we also learn about the world and how we fit into it.

We read many books in English and in each one we, the readers, become the book. Every time we turn a page we make new assumptions, we bring ourselves further into it. The class discussions that follow allow us to see how others interpret and perceive the same information.

There is the opportunity to express our deepest thoughts or emotions: in journals, essays, and poems. All of which are kept secret between ourselves and our teachers. Our imaginations go to work overtime on those sometimes tough and frustrating creative writing assignments.

English, along with all of the other subjects, helps to make us well rounded people. It combines a variety of ideas, but is not everyone's favorite subject.

English is required all four years, therefore, we must make the best of it. Remember, we're not just learning where to place a comma or a period, but how to express what we feel and want out of life. English, after all, is an art.

These are Hobbies

Todd Strother, football and basketball extraordinaire, and an intellectual genius exclaimed proudly, "I like to read comic books. Spiderman is my favorite, but Superman is pretty cool too."

It was a warm September day. The Centurion Staff acting on a hot tip, decided to find out the wild and crazy hobbies of the SWHS Seniors. This was going to be an adventure for the staff; one that might leave them scarred for life.

A sheepish looking student, John Gorbolino, chuckled at his wit "I like drinking volcano lava". The groans of his fellow students were deafening. John continued to laugh at his joke. Ha-ha.

Next in the line to be interviewed was a slightly plump but very powerful looking Marine, John Aselton. "I like to jump off roofs!", followed by a grunt.

Todd Strother, football and basketball extraordinaire, and an intellectual genius exclaimed proudly, "I like to read comic books. Spiderman is my favorite, but Superman is pretty cool too."

Through all the noise, came the loud and obnoxious sound of a horse whinnying, followed by the bark of a dog. These wonderful and creative sounds and many, many more are the result of years and years of practice by Dawn Winar. The crowd cheered and begged for an encore.

You would think that these strange hobbies by these unique individuals would be the cream of the crop of incredible weirdness, but it wasn't to be so. Derick Noonan surpasses the crowd with his impressive claim, "I can blow my nose while chewing bubble gum and going to the bathroom."

Thus the Centurion staff concludes that the class of '88 is strange and somewhat derranged.

Matthew Kennedy

Valley of love, for a friend of mine,
Valley of love, which we never find.
He stands alone at the opposite cliff, watching love spread, just as if, he has not left us.

We love one another. Like the separate love,
we felt at one time with him.
A man. Just a man. Brought all of us here, to share love and hope, without any fears.

It makes us feel better, together, not alone, like snowfall.

Not a snowflake apart, by ourselves.
Don't be sad that our friend has gone,
just be glad he found his way home.

For he has found all the answers to the burning questions,

Like a quest in the dark for all of us.

For this, Matt, we dedicate all beautiful things, in your honor.
To comfort you in your never ending search.

So with God's speed, my friend,
May you travel in furious might for this is not our good-bye but just, Goodnight. We can't forget you!!

The Junior Prom

On May 15, 1987 every Junior boy and girl anxiously waited for the end of their last class so they could go home and prepare for a night to remember... "Til The End of Time." Oh how nervous everyone must have felt when finally clean, dressed and neatly clad in glamorous apparel.

The Country Club looked so pretty. The band, "Stryder", that took so long to find during prom preparations blasted out all of the tunes that the Junior class requested.

The King and Queen of the Prom Court, John Jahstorfer and Heather Young started us off on a slow dance followed by the other members of the court.

Wishing that it didn't have to end we'll hold on to our memories and hope to "never say goodbye."

Looking very happy together, Cathy Woska and Brian Jalet share a special moment alone at the prom.

The Class of 1988 of South Windsor High School requests the honor of your presence at the Junior Prom.

Prom Queen, Heather Young, her king John Jahrstorfer, and their royal court, bask in the lime-light with their classmates.

Tracy Klingman and her date Todd Pavone enjoy their dinner and the memories that they will create to last a lifetime.

Kim Hearn receives flowers and congratulations from Mr. Plunkett on being chosen as a member of the royal court.

Student Council

The Student Council has been working exceptionally hard this year for several reasons. With Michele Nellenbach as president, the student council wishes to form a solid base for the student body as a whole. Using stricter policies and by having an executive board, the student council is striving for productivity in the future. By gaining respect from fellow students and teachers, the council can achieve higher goals.

Several attempts have been made to inspire spirit in the High School, for instance, the tug of war during Homecoming, against Rockville, and "The Battle of The Bands". The Student Council members welcomed two exchange students from France and Japan, with a reception that was held in their honor, in our library. Everyone was welcome to attend. A few teachers and many students came and tried to make them feel at home.

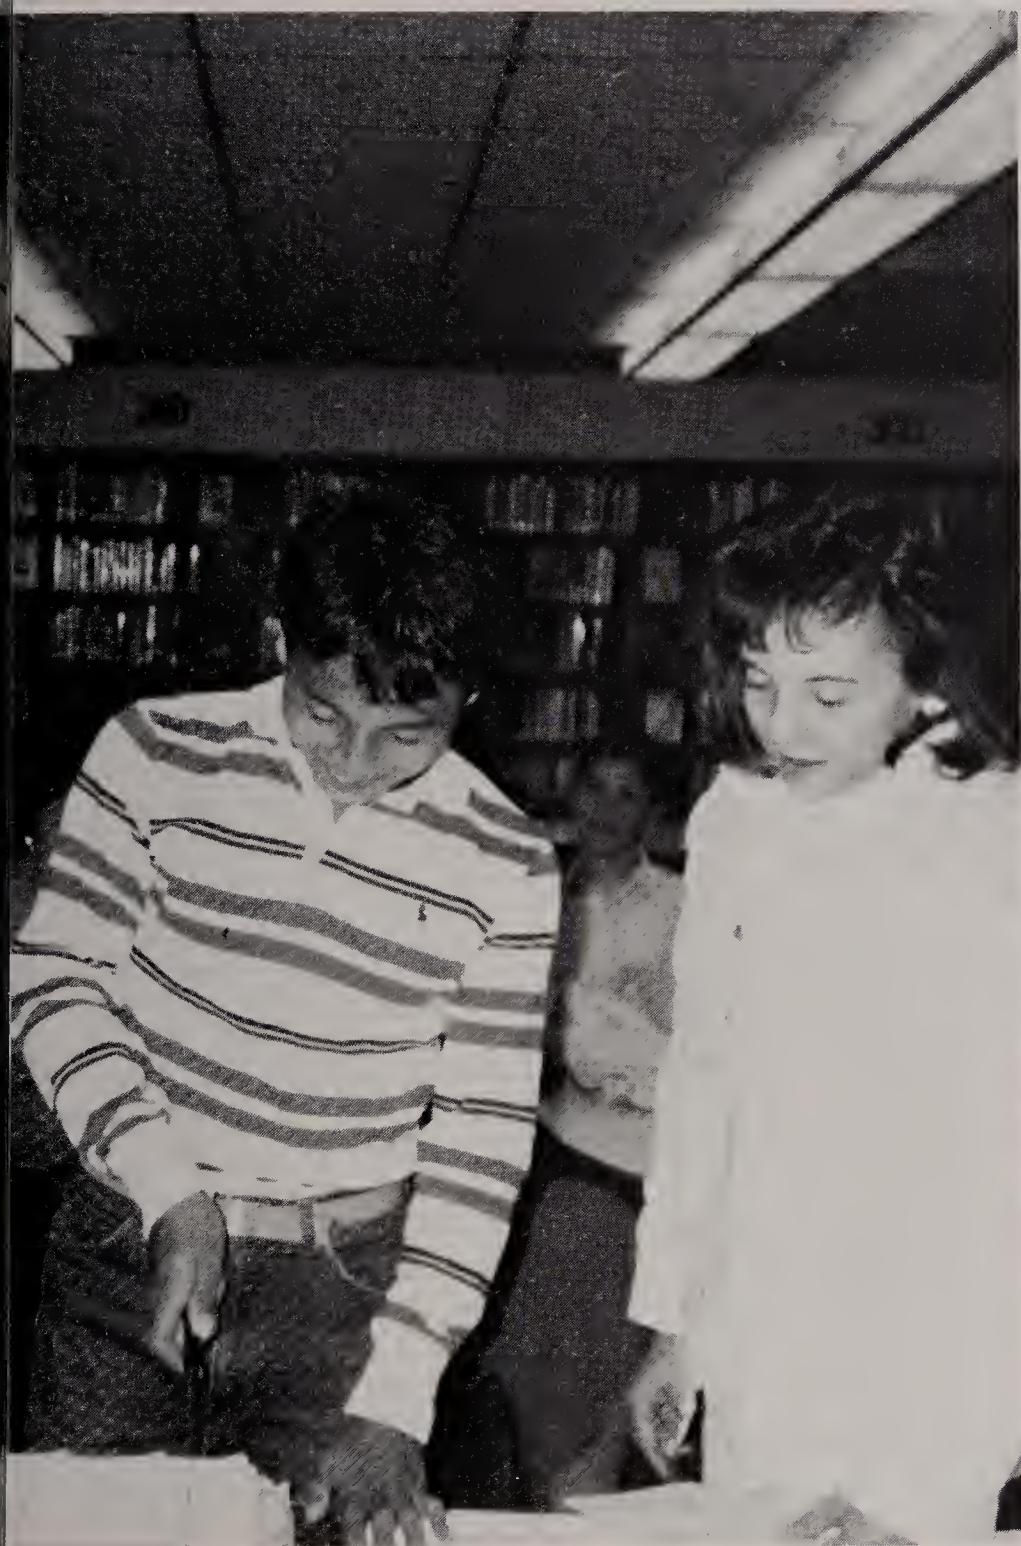

In the spring, Student Council held their annual Blood Mobile. Students and Red Cross members volunteered their time to take blood from any willing students or teachers. In the past the mobile has done extremely well, and this year they completed another successful drive.

Student Council welcomes the exchange students, Kaz, and Marie to our school with a banquet in the library.

President Michele Nellenbach speaks to the members about the preparations needed for the upcoming exchange reception.

National Honor Society

National Honor Society is an elite group of students who demonstrate leadership abilities and have a relatively high grade point average. The students are asked to enter the society by teachers, if they meet the standards. Once in the society the students participate in different community events. A great bonus for students in the group - it looks great on college applications.

J. Elwood, C. Giulini, S. Pak, P. Caspar, B. Zimmer, M. Wlodarczyk, D. Beaudry, T. Strother, M. Sprenkel, L. MacDonald, J. Mammen, S. Smith, S. Martin, H. Young, D. Privette, K. Terwilliger, M. Nellenbach, A. Saini, J. Creem, S. Henry, J. Poucher, M. Geoffroy.

The Math Team

The Math team, headed by Mr. Joy, is again having a fun year. Many think that just the "brains" can compete, but that's just not true! Anyone who has skill playing with numbers can participate. This year's team is proud to say they do a good job in the competition, but they have fun and don't take it quite as seriously as the other schools in the state. Both the A + B teams have done an excellent job. Keep up the good work guys!

Mr. Joy, Jeff Stillman, Rick Balboni, J.J. Brown, Josh Mastronarde, Tom Costa.

Shades

Shades was again a great success. The gym at the Wapping Community House filled quickly, as well as the tiny parking lot out back. There was even a line to get in, because of these over-crowded conditions. The night started with songs preformed by Chris Bowden on bass, Evan Plumley on drums, Dean Mitchell singing, and Frank Butkus on guitar. The group, otherwise known as "SST" entertained the crowd for a while. Then they resumed dancing to records played by a disk-jockey.

In the begining Shades was thought of as just another passing thing, something that was a good effort but would most likely fail. Well it has been over a year now and Shades is still going strong. The dances are held about once every other month and the kids still enjoy going to them, even if it means driving to a new location everytime. Shades is still without a permanent home.

Chris Bowden plays guitar for his band, "SST" at the Shades dance.

The Shades dance went over with great success as kids of all ages spent the evening having a great time.

The crowds pack into the small gymnasium as the music plays and the people dance.

Safe Rides AND Teen Center

Safe Rides currently has 23 members who give up two nights each month from 10pm to 2am. What do they do? Well, they answer phones and provide transportation to people who need it. A good example of a person who might call, would be someone who went to a party and had too much to drink and are in no shape to drive... this is where Safe Rides comes in to help them out. (644-4442)

Safe Rides isn't all work,

the group goes on trips to different places. They have an annual ski trip in January and a winter camping trip that is lots of fun.

The Teen Center is a new place in the South Windsor community where teens can get together and just 'hang out'. The Teen Center is in the Wapping Annex. The Center provides a gathering place for teens who want to socialize, play pool, or just goof off.

Margie Callan and Andy Welch talk to a caller, about addresses and record it for insurance reasons in the log book.

Students from the high school take advantage of the new teen center that now provides them with a place to hang-out.

The Southwinds is put out by the Journalism/Graphics class. The students learn to write newstories, editorials and feature articles. They also learn to typeset, design and layout a paper. The paper comes out after a lesson has been completed or when there's enough news to print.

Outing Club

The feeling of accomplishment can't be shown any stronger than the feeling you get when you make that last run down the mountain. That is what you are going to hear from anyone who participated in this year's numerous ski trips with the Outing Club. You do not have to be an expert skier to experience the thrill of downhill skiing, you just must be willing to take a few bumps and spills.

Are you a mogul fan? Then maybe you would enjoy a fun packed week at MONT SUTTON in Quebec. Maybe you prefer smoothly groomed trails, steep but not dangerous. Then you would probably enjoy a pleasurable day at one of many various New England ski areas. That is not to say that New England is a "Wimpy area" to ski in, just a little lighter than our neighbors to the north.

If skiing is not your bag, the Outing Club also does whitewater rafting, canoeing and hiking. The great outdoors is where you will find Outing Club members.

The Outing Club members brave the whitewaters attempting to avoid a wet spill or a personal moment with a cluster of rocks.

Techies - the last of a dying breed.

Drama Club

Every year, Mr. Brown finds a new musical, each stranger than the last, and every year a group of new thespians audition for parts. This year, "Tom Foolery", a musical satire, was chosen by Mr. Brown. It featured several songs composed by night club performer, Tom Lehrer, for the purpose of poking fun at a variety of past and present affairs. For example, "Who's Next" made fun of the modern arms race, "Pollution" took a blunt, humorous look at the problem of the improper disposal of toxic waste, and "Poisoning Pigeons in The Park" was about the subtle decrease in the pigeon population.

The "spring" musical this year was held in the fall as a result of Mr. Brown's curiosity. He wanted to find out if it would be easier for students to cope with the difficulties of putting on such a production earlier in the year. The general opinion?...The musical will be held in the spring again. In any event, Mr. Foley enjoyed the chance to put on "Up The Down Staircase" at the end of May.

Choral Spectrum and Vocal Ensemble are the top vocal groups in the school. The two groups work closely together, putting on a minimum of three concerts a year, plus a performance at the lighting of the Creche, at Xmas time.

This year Choral Spectrum went into international competition in Quebec, Canada. They gave one of their best shows, combining dance with song. The weekend was spent together in fun and folllie. Spectrum worked hard and long, close together, and sometimes went a little crazy.

Vocal and Spectrum enjoy the work and especially their field trips. They ventured to New York City and saw the Broad Way hit, "Starlight Express", and visited China town. A trip to see "The Phantom of the Opera" is planned for early next year.

said about this part of the music department, it is definitely an experience everyone should have!

The friendships made here are the best!!! The people here are so close and no one is left out.

This year was a little different from all the rest. Mr. Graner replaced Mr. Les-bines as vocal director. It was quite a change, but it worked out well. It was a little difficult at first, but now Mr. Graner is one of the regulars!!!!

Nicole Francis sings her heart out at the Christmas concert.

This year's concert chorus was abandoned by the male gender. However, they were able to prove themselves as a decent female choir. They broke tradition, that Choral Spectrum was the only dance/singing group, and paraded their talents at a shopping mall and convalescent home, where they brought tears to their audience's eyes.

The students choreographed their own show, which was not lacking in movement. They also broke another tradition and held their own concert on a night separate from the other choral groups. This concert was mainly attended by close family and friends. Concert chorus is definitely moving up in this world. Most of this is due to the new director, Mr. Graner, who wants to make each group special in their own ways.

Seniors, Chad Gulini and Phil Caspar, "just playin' around" during intermission of the winter concert.

What is the toughest course in the school? Calculus? Physical Education? According to Louis Lazzarini, the conductor, band requires more coordination than physical education and the ability to calculate notes quickly. When questioned as to the difficulty of this course, one band member said that it depended upon how much you put into it. Students give up several Saturdays in the fall to play at football games.

If band is so hard then why do people join? The members say because for all the work, it's a lot of fun. They make new friends, and, of course they enjoy playing the music. The concerts are what makes it all worth while. However, the concerts are few, (about three a year) and far between. One of the high spots of the year is the exchange concert. For a weekend, the band visits a different school, meets new people, and plays music with them. The next weekend places are swapped. This year the exchange is with a high school in Pennsylvania. Mr. Lazzarini spent a lot of time organizing this years exchange concert. Yet for all the problems, the band keeps on going and the members continue to play. They have a good time, and through hard work, turn out some truly fine music.

Centurion

Bringing together all the memories of people, places, activities, and "best of times", and putting it all into one book is not easy! This is the task of South Windsor Centurion. They are a small group of people who have worked very hard this year to materialize a whole yearbook from the very corners of their creative minds while trying to please the majority of the people and also keeping a sense of tradition. Cathy Woska, editor of the senior section, describes year book: "It's a lot of demanding work, but it is fun." Brian Jalet, editor-in-chief, says: "The determination of a few people made for a good yearbook", even though we had to keep explaining to Brenda that pictures are for yearbook and are to remain in the room. J.J. and Cathy with their unforgettable laughter kept us going through the nights... the long nights!

Some memorable quotes

that will last the rest of our lives:

"Brian!"... "But Mr. Nelson!"... "I'm backing up, somebody pull my plug!"... "Let's go!! Cathy! Brian! We've got work to do..." "But what's wrong with this?"... "Okay, who ate my layout?" "...Anybody know where Brenda is this period?"... "What's the number for New England Photo?"... "Brian...just say yes...thank you!"

Some of the staff discusses certain options for the front cover of the yearbook. It was not an easy task but we did it.

Layout editor, Brian Jalet and sports editor, Kris Lee work on layouts in the afternoon, to try and make an upcoming deadline.

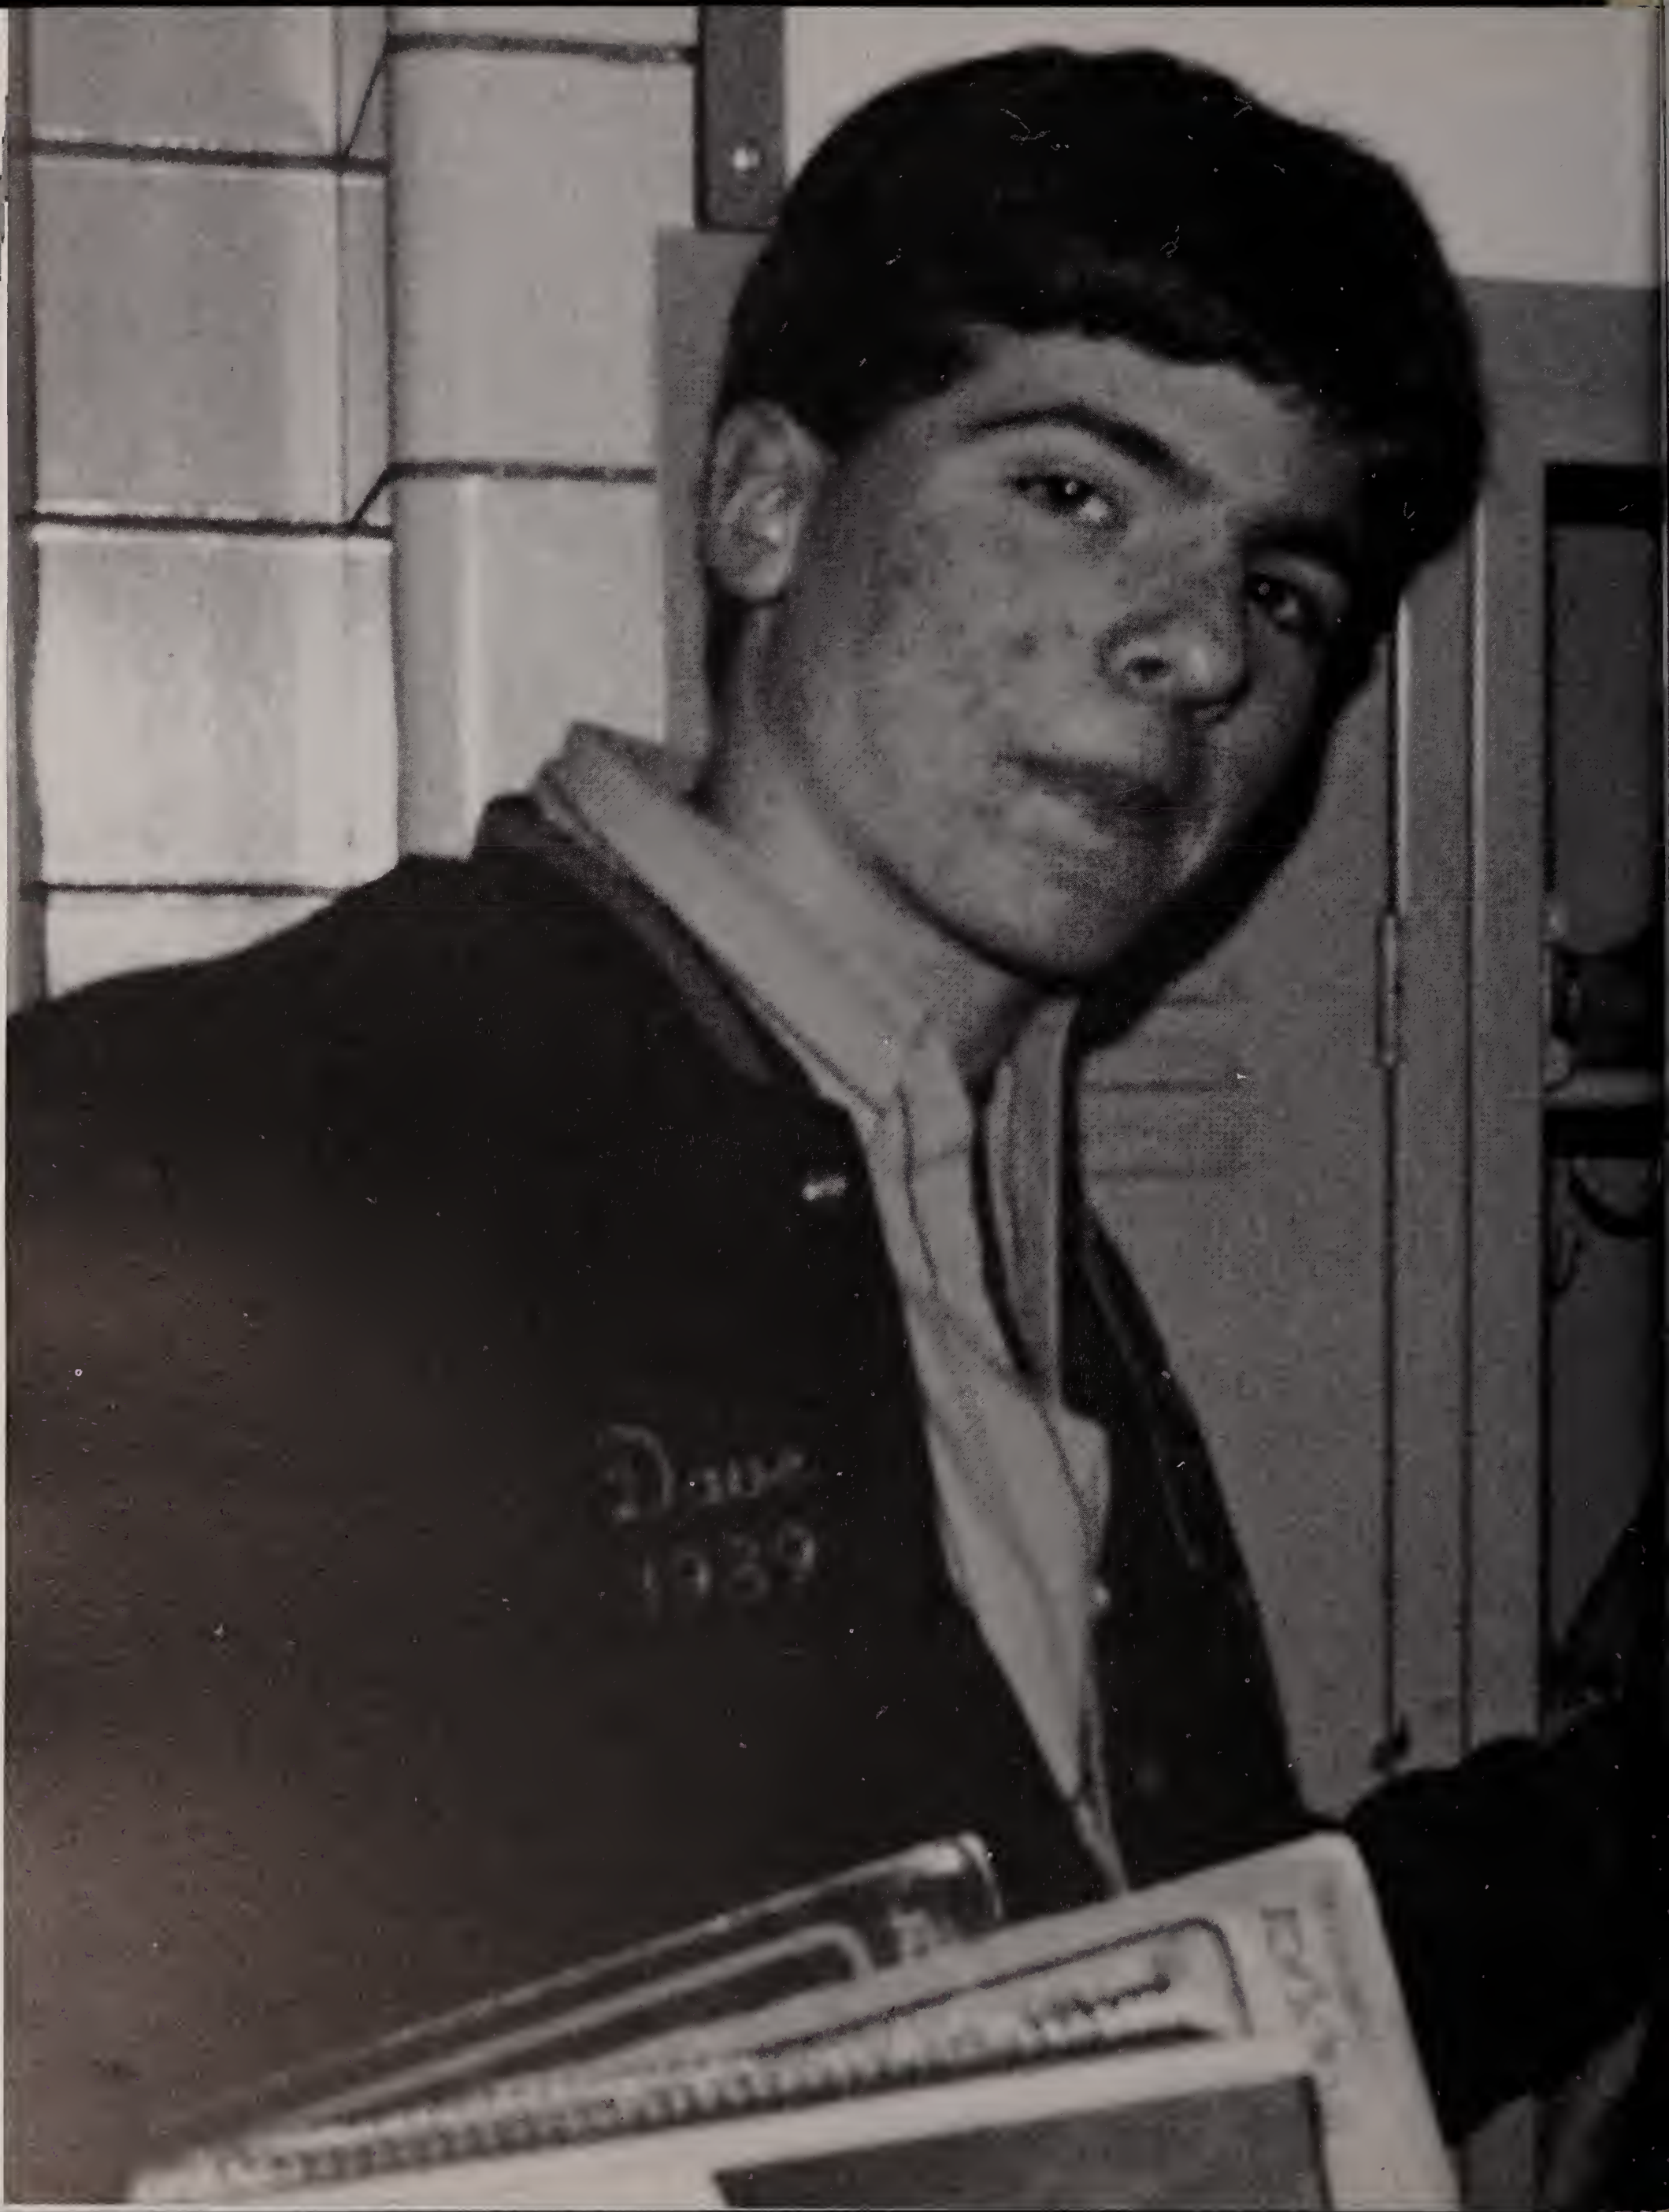

Janine Bowman optimistically searches for the perfect yearbook picture, but "Brenda has em!"

The business manager, Alex Lapins, measures out spaces for advertisements. God bless our community!

Brian Jalet offers some helpful advice to Margie Callan as she completes the Faculty section. So many teachers, so little room!

To Be A Junior

Not having to take the bus every day... Actually having some place to go during Activity... The Prom... Being able to leave class to listen to college speakers... PSAT's... The summer "pocket money" job that turned into an indefinite position... Looking back at Freshmen year and thinking "I can't believe that was me..."

It's a year full of changes. When we begin to look at what we are, what we want to become, and make those two the same thing then we know that our Junior year is here.

It's a time to confront insecurities and a time to realize what the "hiding behind the mask" is all about.

Junior year means dealing with decisions and the consequences of those we have made in the past as well as the ones we will make for our futures.

It means friends coming together, staying together or sometimes breaking apart.

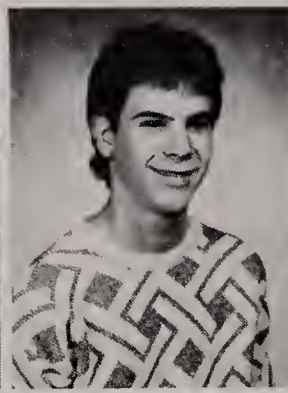

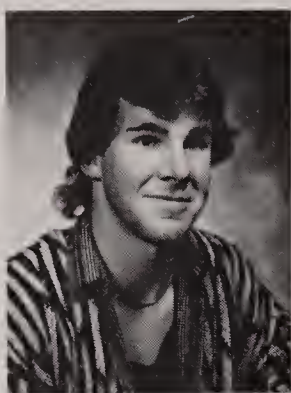

It means being a part of a whole and at the same time respecting each other's individuality.

It's a year that makes memories that last a lifetime. A year of friends and laughter. A year of discovery and a year to build dreams.

The Poles, the islands, the mountains, the far reaches of the globe - any of these sound good to you? Anything sounds good as long as you get out of the house - am I right? However, many of us are quite set in our ideas of where we want to set up camp after graduation. It doesn't need to be anything fancy, just a place to call your own - but what are you gonna put it? The tropics? Well, 21% of you said yeah! Well take someplace tropical - as long as it's not a rain forest and there's Coppertone Headquarters, no problem! Next in line for an environmental preference was Florida with 19%. C'mon now! Don't any of you people ski? Or were you just planning on taking your personalized jet to Aspen? Bet you never thought of that - well orange you smart? You people are so original let me tell you - next best was, you guessed it, Sunny California! What a totally like, unique decision, you know? Of course there were those of you who have a little more sophistication in mind - Europe was voted 9%. Another 9% said they'd pack their bags and head for the Big Apple - heck, why not? Mace is portable, right? Where are the rest of you headed? I couldn't tell you. Perhaps the Windy City in D.C. A ghost town maybe?...

Punk, Rock, Jazz: these are but few of the musical tastes among the spectrum. As you may well know, where you tread among the spectrum is a very touchy subject indeed - your musical preferences say alot about you. Whether you are a bead-adorned dead-head or a top-fortyite, a head-banger or a masher you take your tunes seriously. Everyone else was split between punk, metal, jazz, and the 60's/70's.

Spending $

Work, Work, Work...

"Never have enough"

Being teenagers, we spend a lot of money. As Madonna sang, "We're living in a material world." There is so much out there and we want it all! Money never stays in our wallets for long. Whether it's clothes, food or a car, money is the important aspect. 30% of the underclassmen said they spent most of their money going to the movies, the arcade, shopping or just out. Your wallet was full this morning, but now it is almost empty. Where did it all go? Well isn't this a big mystery? But if you had fun it was probably worth it!

Homecoming

The Senior Event

Rockville Defeated!!!

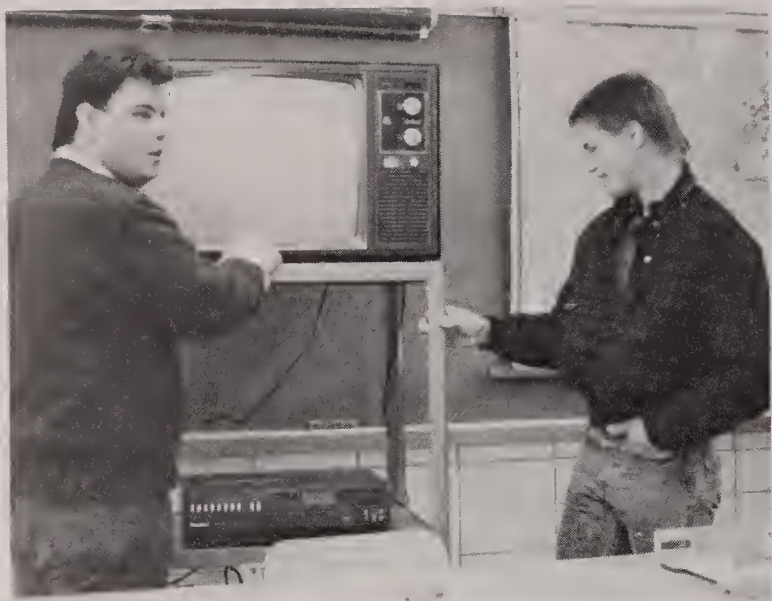

Peace, Love, Song...

This years Homecoming Dance sponsored by the Class of '88 was a big success. Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores and Freshmen gathered together in peace - friendship - and song.

After having spent the day together at a football game, watching the powderpuff game, the tug-of-war and simply having a good time, relaxation was found swaying to the sounds of the 60's. The sounds of today could also be heard. Everyone experienced a variety of tunes and all had a good time.

Next year's Seniors should hope for continued success in each event that they create.

Work on!!!

Juniors Pay Their Dues

It Does Take Talent!

Work? Yuk! You would think that working and going to school at the same time is quite difficult, but over 60% of the Juniors don't seem to think so. Why do it?

Money is the main problem. As a Junior myself, I am sick of always asking my parents for money. I need my own money. Besides, getting a job means more independence and receiving money that you yourself earned.

Mark Perry is tagging products at Super Heartland. Anybody have a headache?

A job can also be exciting along with meeting new people and actually getting job experience. Balancing a job and doing school work is the hard part, but obviously many students are able to handle this.

Do you like it hot?

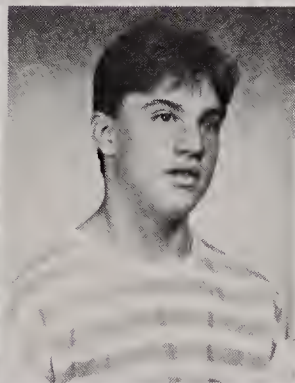

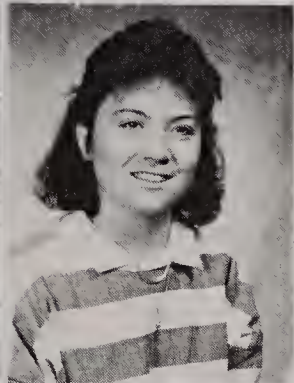

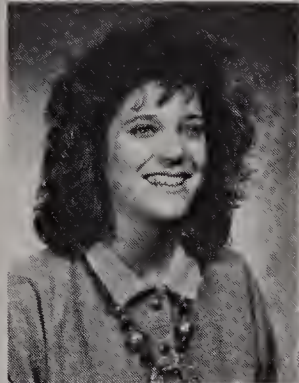

The answer to that question from the sophomores was a definite YES! California was a popular choice where as Florida was nobody's preference. A tropical climate was a close second with New York right on it's heels. 10% preferred a European atmosphere but Audrey Welch would personally like to be as far away from people as possible. Her choice is Alaska.

Let's Go For A Ride!

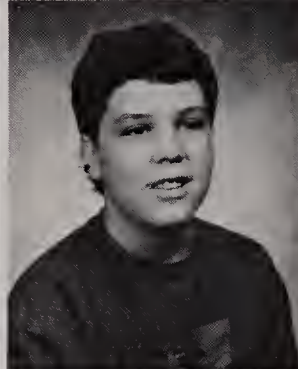

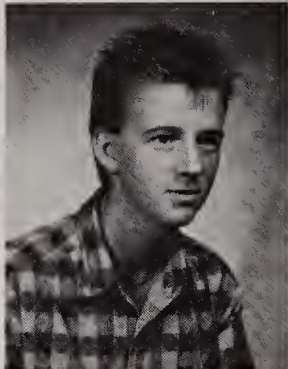

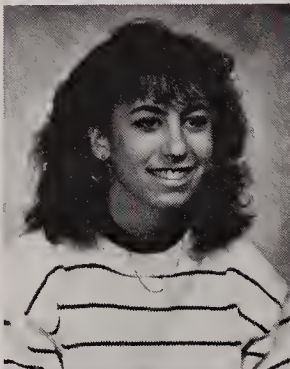

As you look at the traffic all around you while traveling down the road, there are just so many cars to see and such a wide variety of styles and makes. Everyone has their own choice and this class is no exception. The top vote-getter was the Corvette with the Ferrari and the Lambourgini tying for second. Third in the race was the Porsche with the Camaro and Mercedes tying for last place. Yet an overwhelming number of you had a wide variety of what your preference was. Jamie Sirhol with a grin said, "I would love a Bug and that's all there is to it." Oh well, to each his own...

The number 1 choice of the Sophomore class... a bright red Corvette!

FOOD...the favorite pas-time of multiple victims of boredom and bottomless pitdom. But it's more than that though, isn't it? Many is the day we spend roaming aimlessly about the Greater South Windsor Area searching for the ultimate "hang-out" - that hole in the wall where we share a bite to eat. We live for the moments we spend scarfing down the greasy delectibles of the local franchises. Suprisingly 27% of the sophomores prefer McDonalds with Burger King following close behind with an amazing 21%. (Man you guys! Where's your sense of Adventure? There's more to life than mock meat and milkshakes.) 17% still like the family all time favorite: Friendly's and the remainder of you hole up in D.Q. or the China Rose.

Jamie May enjoys a frozen ice milk snack during lunch. Cafeteria food was not among the most popular choices.

Ravenous adolescents cramming their faces with food is not a rare sight to behold at S.W.H.S. Almost half of the sophomores surveyed voted Italian cuisine as their favorite type of food. About a third opt for the immortal fast food diet.

The pickier palates choose Chinese (19%) or Spanish-/Mexican food (6%). The last three or so percent with a non-discriminating appetite say they'll eat "anything". Are dieters no more?

Tunes!!

Groove with the class of '91

Music - the ultimate mode of expression. As with anything else, when it comes to our tunes- to each his own. Out of the freshmen class, only the unique minority chose to diversify from the casual pop/rock combo of musical tastes. The two consumed a whopping 77%. What about the rest of the masses? Well the 15% chose the droning beat of metal-heavy or otherwise. Head-bangers of the world unite. As for the remainder, we have these rare individuals who choose to mash to the sounds of punk/hardcore and mellow to the cosmic notes of the sixties and seventies. Wow! Such varying musical preferences! Listeners- dare to be different, this could be the emergence of a new cultural movement blossoming on the wings of music!

Three freshmen get down and dance the night away to their favorite music, at the homecoming dance.

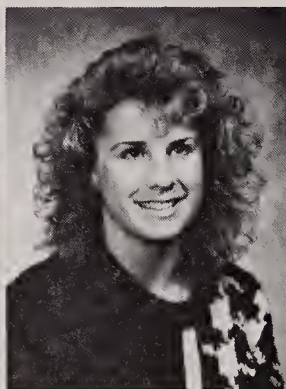

Four I.A. students just horsin' around, in the last five minutes of class, waiting for the bell to ring.

Dreadful buses.

Another day - another bus.

Will it end? Maybe next year?

Being a freshman is tough. A year ago we were the leaders of the school, today we are on the lowest rung of the ladder. We get used to all the "freshman" jokes and wise cracks. But the most degrading thing we do is ride the bus every morning, and afternoon.

We get up everyday, walk

The enthusiastic face of a freshman on yet another relaxing and enjoyable ride to school on yet another Monday morning-only the beginning of the week.

to the bus-stop and stand there waiting as mother nature dumps her daily weather upon us. This ranges from blinding fogs and billowy snowflakes to pouring rain, nasty hail and cold sleet. And don't forget the temperatures that are always below freezing.

We'll remember these days, and all the times the upper classmen drove by and splashed us with mud or water and then smiled and waved.

Socialize!

Let's get together and talk.

I have so much to tell you.

As Freshmen, we take advantage of our new found freedom. Getting together in the halls, away from the crowded upperclassmen corridors is just the way to do it. We stand in the halls and talk about the days events. This is the only time and space we get to talk to our friends. In T.E. there was never a chance to do this.

The time we share, isn't just for idle talk. This is the time when we get to know each other better. We bounce ideas off each other and talk out our problems. Or we tell silly stories or rotten jokes .

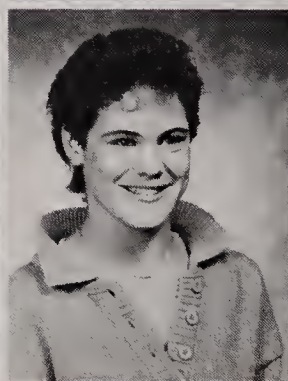

If anyone asks, "Where are you supposed to be?", we can say, "I don't know.", and most likely get away with it. Simply due to the fact that we are freshmen. We're smarter than we look!

Let our laughter echo down the halls-let it tantalize and tease- we're still young-we'll work next year...maybe.

Funnies

Cartoons and comics

Our only escape

From the hard school days.

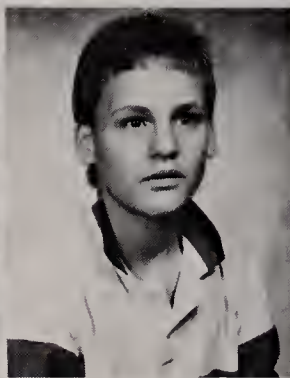

Calvin and Hobbes live! This year our ram-bunctious boy and his pet tiger wiped out all the other cartoons. This comic was chosen over Garfield, who was graced by a mere 27% of the votes. Whereas Calvin & Hobbes received the majority's vote with 30%. Ranked at the bottom of this list were the all-time classics, like Peanuts, Doonesbury and Bloomcounty. The three combined could only account for 43% of the remaining votes. I guess when it comes to the comic-strips the class of '91 is split, for the results were close. However their favorite was able to break away from the group and lead the way to victory.

All that time we thought the freshmen guys were studying and working hard... they were really reading Calvin and Hobbes! The sneaky little devils had the comics hidden in their books all along.

The freshman's dream... sun, sand and surf. California, a place where the surf is definitely up! 26% of the freshmen surveyed said one day they would like to live on the Pacific coast, over 3,000 miles away. The sunny warm beaches of Florida were another of the most popular places. 24% of the class of '91 chose a winter haven, flocked with trees, as their winter-time hideout. New York, of course, was third with 18%. Obviously a place filled with adventure. So what does all this prove? Well, it definitely seems that people prefer to be baking in the tropical sun, rather than trudging to Wapping in the rain and slush.

This is...

The Life

We sent out the call, "Come Together", and the students of South Windsor High School did. They cheered, played, laughed, danced, and stood beneath the stars in the fire light...together. They "pulled together" on Saturday, November 7th., to beat our rival Rockville. Not only did the Bobcats beat Rockville in the football game but also in a tug of war. All of the students are different types of people but for one weekend it didn't seem to matter.

"Come on guys let's get it together!". Brian Jalet, an artist at work, composes a picture... But does he?!

What is wrong with this picture? Senior boys cheer on the girls' Powder Puff game. Powder Puff Cheerleaders?

Homecoming

During half time, King and Queen, Bobby Douglas and Robin Pitts, lead the Homecoming Court onto the S.W.H.S. football field in chauffeur driven convertibles. They were each presented with a boutonniere and bouquet. Brian Symonds and Tara Saylor were the Junior members of the court following the parade. Wendy Clark, Paul Bavier, and Jessica Mosur represented the underclassmen. Later that same evening at the homecoming dance the King and Queen, along with their court led a spotlight dance. Robin Pitts was selected Homecoming Queen for the second consecutive year by popular demand.

Sean Molloy and Rich Sartor lead the SWHS victory over Rockville in a tug of war. One of the many Homecoming activities.

Once again the Bobcats gain control of the ball as the "Jahrstorfer offensive" leads to another successful maneuver.

A Rockville effigy burned as the wick of homecoming was lit. The bon fire, an age old tradition, was reinstated this year for Homecoming.

This is... The Pep Rally

Screaming... Yelling... Going crazy... The typical Pep Rally... Cheering your team on to victory. It must have worked because on Saturday, November 7th., Homecoming Victory - South Windsor Bobcats 33 ... Rockville Rams 9.

Mr. Gregory Plunkett, Principal of South Windsor High School and one of many guest speakers, welcomes the students to the Homecoming Pep Rally.

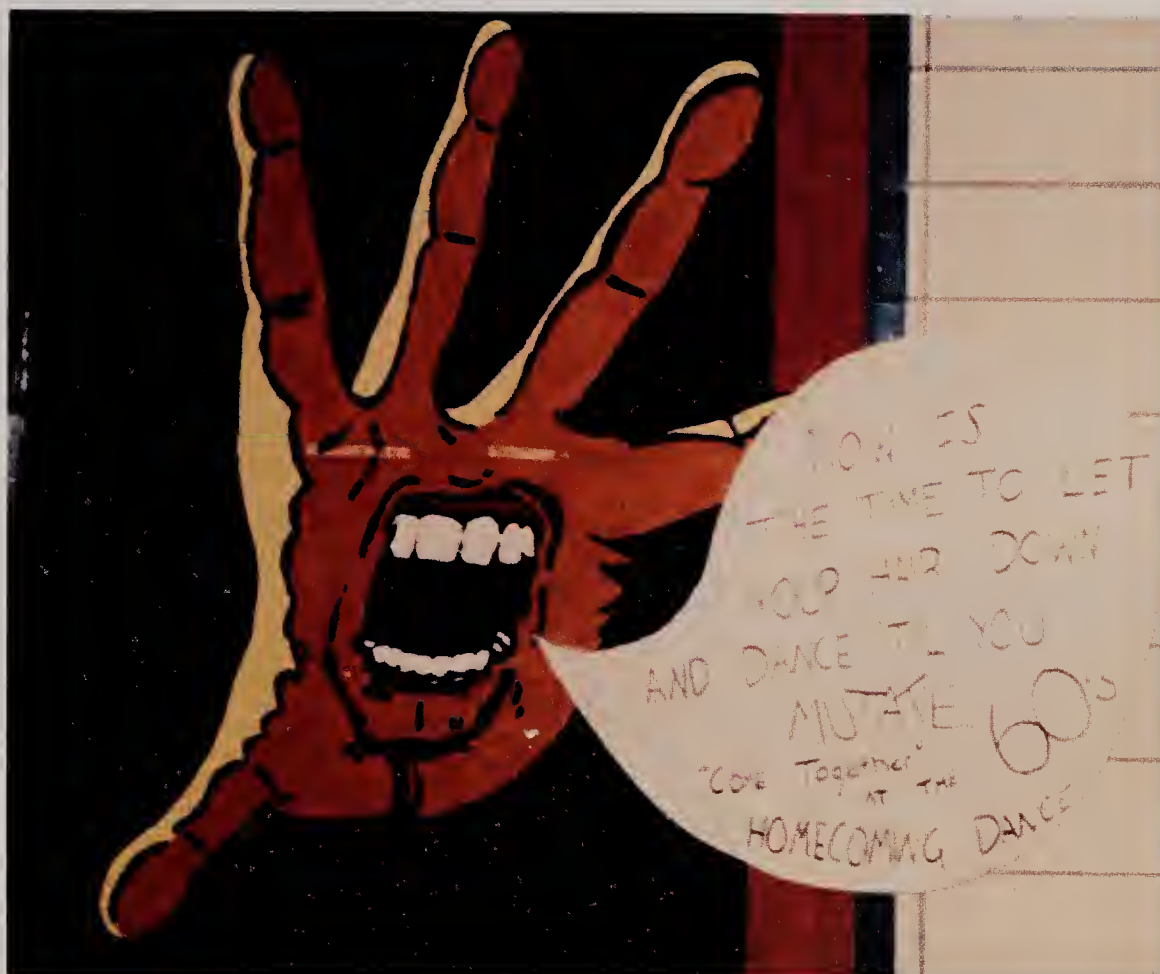

Senior Brian Nicknair, a member of the S.W.H.S. Band, pipes out the National Anthem on his Alto Saxophone at the beginning of the Pep Rally.

Band members Brian Conway, Jean Pitzi, and Margie Callan march off the field after their halftime performance.

Peter Weremchuck, President of the Senior Class, demonstrates his school spirit through his artistic ability, with a creative Homecoming poster. Many posters accompanied this one on the walls throughout the school to portray the sixties' theme.

The night before the Homecoming Dance, students worked diligently to decorate the gym; making it look like a scene from the sixties. The gym was carefully strung with banners and an intricate network of streamers. A lamp, adorned with peace symbols by Peter Weremchuck, illuminated the dance floor.

Junior, Sue Gavini, rehearses for an audition for a part in the fall musical "Tom Foolery". The show was performed on Nov 20-21.

S.W.H.S.

Diversity... When walking through the halls of South Windsor High School you can see it all- the six foot seven inch basketball player; the four foot two inch freshman struggling to carry his books; the cheerleaders; the football players and their girlfriends; the punk with the dud hair and combat boots; the heavy metal maniac wearing black leather and makeup; and the hippie with the tie-dye's. The preps socialize in the library and the brains cower behind a desk pushing buttons on a calculator.

We all have different roots ranging from the very rich to the lower middle class. All are drawn together under one roof to receive an education. Some are just biding their time until they can graduate, some are still here because it's the law, or because they still can't pass their sophomore year, while others plan to go on to college. When you walk through the halls, you can see it all- the students of South Windsor High.

Sophomore Jamie May chooses from a diverse variety of exotic foods in the a la carte lunch line.

Smokers take advantage of their smoking privilege which will be taken away next year, because of the new state law.

These are...

Memories

As we leave South Windsor High School there will be a time we look back upon these pages with heartfelt memories. As we peer down these hallways we will hear echos and see visions of our friends and classmates. We will remember the good times along with the bad. Then we must push through the front door and start on our endless walk towards our future.

Looking back over our shoulder we realize how far we've come and grown within the walls of South Windsor High School. Isn't it funny that we don't realize how important something is in our lives until it's gone? But we have no regrets, for we can blame it on our youth and "innocence".

Looking forward once again we take our final ride through the parking lot and cherish those lasting memories of the familiar swarms that gathered there, knowing that they will always live on in our hearts.

We the people of South Windsor High School have together formed a union to create long lasting memories.

Sports

Football

This place is very special to me. It's a place where I feel comraderie and trust, yet at the same time feel hatred. It's a place where emotions run wild and where anything can happen. This is the place where I like to express myself. I can find myself here.

What I'm writing about is the football field. I've played football on this field since I was eight. At that young age, I didn't really know what football was all about. Now, as I have grown, the sport has become a part of me. When I'm playing on that field, I know exactly where I stand. I have no doubts about my feelings. I like that security. Many times, the night before a game I would climb over the metal fence, walk out onto the middle of the field, and absorb everything around me. I would picture how the game would go the next day. The blood would start rushing through my veins as my intensity grew and my mental preparation began to be finished.

The day of the game, the football field turned into a war zone. The splintered bleachers filled up with people. The team had a certain look in their eyes. Not a word was spoken. Everybody was ready to play the game. As the team entered the field, there was a feeling of unity. We felt as if we could conquer the world on that field. Our blood boiled as the enemies stepped out onto the field. They had no right to be there, and we wanted to make them pay, physically, for showing up.

In the other extreme, the football field was a peaceful place for me. I could go there, sit against a tree, and relax. I could just as easily sit against a tree in my backyard, but when I'm out on the field on a nice spring day, I have many memories, some good, and some bad.

Now my football experiences are through at South Windsor High School. All I will have left are the memories. It's hard for me to say whether or not the next football field I play on will be as special to me. However, I do know that this field will always be the one I remember."

Boys' Soccer

My four years of playing soccer . . . it all started in 1984, when I first entered the high school soccer program. There is a big difference between junior high and high school. The coaching aspect was totally different; the middle school had a good passing game, while the high school had a kick-and-run, very physical game.

When I made Varsity, it was hard, because everyone was fighting for playing time. I had to play much harder to make up for my size. Finally, Coach Sharos gave me a chance, and I showed him my stuff.

It was difficult sometimes to play for Coach Sharos, who has a controversial method of playing, and we unfortunately didn't go far this year.

Field Hockey

It's 8 am. One week before school. It's the beginning of what is known as "hell week", or, simply, pre-season field hockey.

"It always began with our daily run, followed by rigorous training, skill work and sprints.

"I guess the hardest times were when we lost the tournament game to New Cannan after the game had been postponed for a week because of snow. And, after tying a game with Enfield and sharing first place in the CCC, we suffered a tough loss the second time around.

"20 hills after each 3 hour practice weren't too much fun, either. But the long bus rides and our mascot Godzilla...there were some good times, too."

If I had been asked as a freshman whether I would ever earn a Varsity letter, I would have said, "No! I don't DO sports." But here I am, a senior, with a Volleyball letter.

I started with a friend in Junior year - it was hard to play with people who seemed to have played for a million and one years. We knew nothing of try-outs, practices, scrimmages or state finals. Of course, being a rookie, I had to spend my first season as a JV player.

This year, I was promoted to the Varsity squad. The previous year's team had had a phenomenal record, and I felt that the chances of beating it were non-existent. Still, the team persevered to an 18-2-0 record, being beaten in the second states game.

The team was really supportive. It was a fun experience."

Boys' Basketball

This year's basketball team entered the season with high hopes. We realized that we would be playing in one of the toughest leagues in the state, confronting such powers as East Hartford, Hartford Public, Manchester, and Windham. With six returning seniors, however, we were very well prepared for these teams. Coming out of an 86-87 tournament-bound season and a remarkable coaching debut by Gary Barcher, the players expected to post one of the first winning seasons in several years at SWHS.

"Well...if there were only three quarters in a game, we would be a winning team. We could play with the best of the teams - right up until the fourth quarter, when we would fold and become the "South Windsor Bakery" - as Coach Sharos would say. We had too many turnovers. We just couldn't seem to come through during "crunch" time.

"We have, however, established ourselves as a program with overall excellent team play. The combined talents of each individual have made us capable of playing good, solid basketball.

"Although our record may not show it, we played some great basketball under a brilliant coaching performance. Coach Barcher's coaching ability and the time and effort put forth by him and his assistant, Peter Anthony, should not go unrecognized.

It is because of this good coaching and play that we walked out of the gym this year with a great sense of pride. We earned the respect of many basketball teams. Windham's coach openly admitted that the Bobcats were a better team. We hope that next year's players and Coach Barcher continue their tough play and keep this hard-earned reputation.

"Just to know that South Windsor will no longer be taken lightly by anybody is more than satisfying."

Girls' Basketball

In the beginning of the basketball season, when people asked how the girls' basketball team looked, I laughed. What team? At most, we had nine people at practice - not even enough to hold a decent scrimmage. We finally managed to come up with thirteen girls.

Due to the inexperience of half the team, we had to go back to the basics. Last year's players were discouraged, but managed to find a bit of humor in the situation.

It was interesting to see the change in Coach Rusch's attitude. With the amount of work to be done, we were surprised to see her smile, even break down and laugh. This helped us through our disappointing experiences.

Unexpectedly, we won our first three games, and then we set a goal to surpass last year's record of four wins. By setting individual goals, we had all improved by mid-season. Coach Rusch tried to speak a little French for Marie, our exchange student, while others worked on things like foul shots, running faster than a lightning bolt, or impersonating a favorite cartoon character on the court. We all worked hard and improved, a lot more than our 4-16 record lets on. And we had a good time."

The thrill of victory, the agony of defeat...appropriate terms to use in referring to gymnastics. Winning is always a good feeling, and, in gymnastics, it's a sense of accomplishment. The three hours of practice each day pay off when you win. Losing gives you the desire to practice more, because the loss is probably due to an unpointed toe, a fall of the apparatus or a bent leg. Little things mean a lot in gymnastics. This year's team had the best season

English is not simply the subject that requires a lot of reading and writing, English is a complex subject that deals with people, their personalities, their societies, and the norms and values of their communities. There are students who claim not to have this "understanding" of these values, norms or other rules. That's why our English department is here. These dedicated teachers spend their time creating a curriculum that will allow the students to find out on their own how these things came about and how they affect our society.

The best way to relay these values is often through readings, where the students are usually required to keep a journal. Within these journals, the students question the views and intricate networks of the societies. They offer their own explanations and ideas on how these values came about and learn how they drew those conclusions and why certain assumptions were made.

What they are learning is the art of critical thinking, which will travel with them the rest of their lives. It will instill in these students a logical way of reasoning things out and confronting problems that they may encounter, or just let them see and understand the other side of a story.

English is important, that is why it is required for us to take during our four years at the high school. English will aid us in a variety of ways once we finish our careers and leave to go our separate ways, out into the world.

The beginning of this year brought many changes. Among these changes was the addition of new teachers. Mr. Graner moved up from T.E.. He has taken over four performing groups that meet everyday. One of his highlights was the change in the voices- the richening in sounds. He also enjoys sharing things like Eastern and All-States, with students who are serious and want to move beyond what is offered here at S.W.H.S..

Graner has set a goal for himself, which contains a three year plan. This plan will include finding out what will attract students and hopefully increase the number of participants in the musical areas, (which recently has declined). Graner feels that music is the "true expression of feelings", and he hopes to show and share this feeling with you.

Science

Decisions, decisions...biology, anatomy, chemistry, physics—these are only a few of the many science courses offered here at S.W.H.S.. No matter what course you decide to venture in, there is the promise of a lot of work, memorization, and thinking put into action. These classes can be easy or difficult, but they are always challenging.

Many students have enjoyed, in particular, the lab work. Whether it's dissecting a pig, burning sodium, having an egg toss or building a bridge out of tooth picks. There is a certain thrill about knowing one can actually perform a scientific experiment successfully.

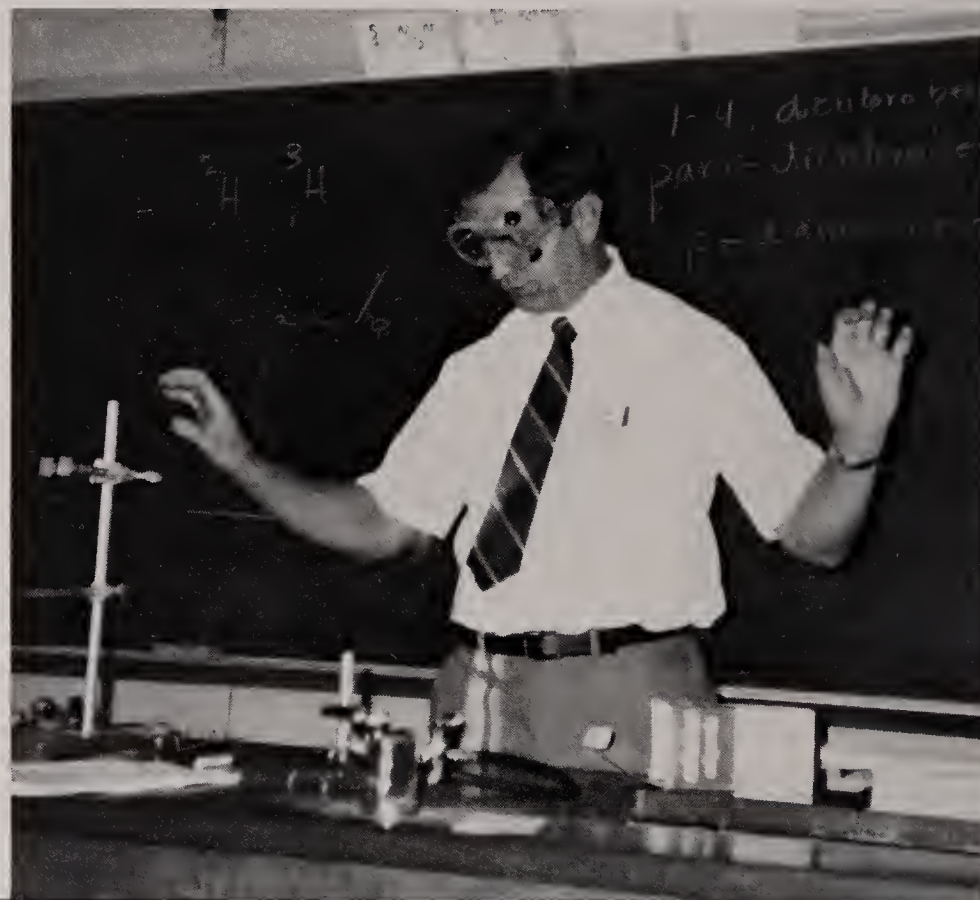

As Mr. Morline's sign says, "Possibly the greatest source of human happiness is in personal achievement."

"That is what science is all about. These teachers deserve a lot of credit. They have probably spent some sleepless nights worrying about the next day's experiments, and whether or not their classroom will still be there when they're finished."

Many of these teachers spend a lot of time with those students who have great frustration and 0% patience in classes of Chemistry and physics.

The science department deserves a big thanks for their effort and definitely their patience!!!!

The students who take these courses often go on to college to major in these areas, or they fall back on their studies later in life. What can you learn in a business class that you can fall back on later in life?

Well, you can learn how to balance a check book so your checks don't bounce.

This is an important thing to know, so your car isn't repossessed and the electricity isn't turned off. Another important thing to know is how to type, whether it's for personal use or business. Knowing how to type will

Foreign Language

Es ce que tu parle une langue cetrange? (Do you speak a foreign language?) After at least two years of French, Spanish or Latin, most students at South Windsor High School have a general overview of what a foreign language is all about. But can a student actually speak the language? With only two to three years of experience, it is very unlikely.

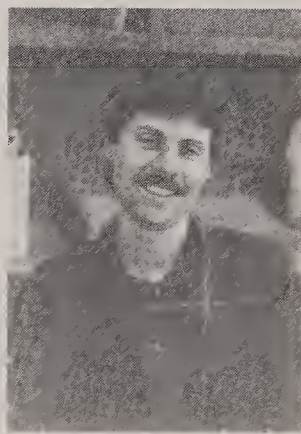

So why take a foreign language? According to junior, Steve Shaker, "There is very rarely a time when you are called upon to use one. Is there more to a foreign language than just learning to speak in a foreign tongue? Mrs. Mellen, a Latin instructor, feels that any foreign language class "Broadens one's horizons, and helps to make one more aware of their own language."

There is much to be gained, through the exploration of another culture; historical references and facts are very much a part of the classes.

Basically, foriegn languages are an important part of a students ability to think clearly and to advance intellectually in a well-rounded manner. Another good reason to take a language, is that Americans have become, in general, rather arrogant. We expect everyone to speak our language, well they won't always cater to us. Hasn't anyone ever told you, "When in Rome, do as the Romans do."?

Guidance & CWE

The guidance department is one of the busiest places in the school. The counselors are always rushing here and there; to solve a problem, straighten out a schedule, or lend a sympathetic ear to one or a group of students.

It is difficult to keep track of 1100 students; to make sure they are taking the courses they need, and in the case of the seniors, providing scholarship materials, college applications, and letters of recommendation.

The guidance counselors have a lot to deal with and do a super job. The guidance department secretaries do a fine job of helping the students get passes to their counselors and taking care of paper work and other guidance office work.

Social Studies

The social studies department offers a vast area of studies. There are courses offered in U.S. history, World civilization, World crisis and the American response; plus Psychology, Sociology, Lawmaking and Criminal justice, and of course the history of our own state- Ct history.

A student only needs to get three credits in social studies, in which one of those credits is in U.S. history. However, a majority of the students do take four years of social studies. And why not? It is important to learn about the history of the world and how things got to be the way they are today.

One of the reasons we study the major wars is to discover why so many people had to die and whether they died in vain or not. We study how fads can take over peoples lives and how one person can change the entire course of history.

Anyway you look at it, the staff of this department works hard and deserves credit for it. They are always eager to teach us about the "Social Studies" of the world!

Students do have a say in some of the things that go on. How can this be? The administration works on a board that has student representatives from the Student Council who keep them in touch with students views on school issues.

The Administration consists of three men who occupy their time talking with students, parents, and teachers. Not to mention the endless hours they spend behind a desk filling out paper work and talking on the telephone to various people within the town. It's a dirty job, but somebody has got to do it.

Although they don't spend a lot of time with the students they somehow seem to stay in touch with and on top of student activities. It's hard to keep in constant contact with all of the students during the course of their day, there never seems to be enough time. Everything always seems to work out the right way, no matter what the problem or issue may be.

We are very lucky to have people who really care about our well being and education. They work hard and the students rarely give them the credit they deserve. Without these men in these positions of power South Windsor High might not be what it is today... the best school in the state!

This is...

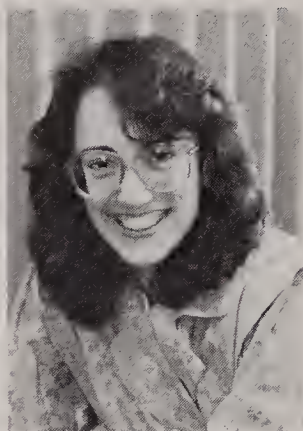

Special Education

Mrs. Kuhnly

Miss Bancardi

Ms. Rescott

Mrs. UMBERFIELD

These devoted ladies put forth a lot of effort in teaching special education students. Working on a one to one basis ,they try to give their support and aid to those students who have learning difficulties. This is an exceptional class where there are very close teacher-student relationships!!

Cafeteria Staff

The cafeteria! This is a place of refuge from the mind boggling early morning classes. Those last five minutes before lunch are the worst, when the embarrassing stomach noises start to arise and the run for the pizza line is definitely a close race. But what about the Cafeteria Staff? Day after day ,they go through and serve the endless lines of desperate kids grabbing at anything close to edible. Rarely are the students ever thankful.

Students in this school have tried the majority of the lunches. Hearing all the bad hype about what the meals are "really " made of, many hesitate with great caution, but usually find the meals are pretty decent and tasty! Considering what our staff goes through everyday, they are doing a great job!

Custodians

The final bell rings and the cries and laughter of the students quickly fades away. Close to silence, except for a few questionable kids who actually stick around, and of course the custodians. Mostly unnoticed around the school, these brave men roam the empty buildings and clean up the dirt and debris left behind by students, faculty, and administration.

Going through the course of the day we rarely think about the people who are going to pick up after us. Those "nameless students" who, without a thought, trash the school with their garbage and cigarette butts. What a dramatic change from when we leave the building at 1:50 to when we come back the next morning. Its clean again!! Was it magic?

We owe a big thanks to the custodians. Everyday they clean-up our messes. From gum on the floors to clogged up toilets, they actually survive it all!!
